

Organisation

Getronics

Industry

Professional Services

Background

A business transformation services provider, Getronics partners with leading business technology providers to deliver organisations with first-class solutions that transform brands, grow businesses, and make people's lives better.

The Problem

Understanding that threats to business security and data are ever more sophisticated, Getronics sought a solution that ensures their thousands of employees, based in locations across the world, are aware of the threats they potentially face on a daily basis.

The Solution

Hut Six's interactive and engaging cybersecurity awareness training, phishing simulator and learning management system.

“Hutsix removes the ‘boring’ from compliance without losing the importance of the message.”

As a trusted professional services solutions provider that specialises in business transformation, Getronics were aware that their employees required a solution that helps ensure the security and integrity of both their customers' and their own data from potential threats.

Wishing to supplement existing in-house training, Getronics sought an effective information security awareness training solution that integrated with their present training systems and helped ensure that their working practices were reinforced by a secure culture mindset.

With great feedback from members of staff, and a reported improvement in their ability to spot potential information security threats such as phishing, Getronics is now not only more secure, but also able to demonstrate to current and potential clients that a secure workplace culture underpins everything they do.

“The workforce is now able to spot phishing emails or potential cyber-attacks within a few seconds of receiving them.”

- Salvatore Baglieri | Head of Learning and Development